

Christian Klein

Christian Klein is AED's Vice President of Government Affairs. He has served in various senior policy positions in AED's Washington office since 1996 and in 2005 became AED's first vice president of government affairs.

In addition to running the day-to-day operations of the Washington office and serving as AED's senior lobbyist, he is also a leading national expert on equipment dealer-manufacturer laws and a member of the adjunct faculty at the University of Virginia, where teaches courses in political public relations, law, and ethics.